12. Trying to Pull Out: Woman Teaching Children at Home
Transylvania, Louisiana, 1939

The indomitableness of the human spirit is evident in this photograph of a poor and barely literate woman trying to educate her children so they can rise above their poverty. The rural African-American population of tenant farmers from the deep South was among the hardest hit during the Depression. Victims of racial discrimination as well as economic depression, they were often the first to lose their livelihood.
